

HOME SWEET HOME AT WATERSTONE

As the weather turns colder, and the days grow shorter, many of us begin think longingly of sunnier climes and holidays away.

So it is for the “snowbirds” at Waterstone, the new home development at 64th Avenue and 194th Street. Those residents choosing to travel south, or spend some time with family and friends outside the lower mainland, will head to the airport confident in the knowledge that an in-home wired security system, on-site caretaker, brightly-lit parkade and see-through safety glass lobby will keep their home safe until their return. And certainly, living in this award-winning community will make coming home even sweeter.

Meanwhile for the Waterstone residents wintering here, whether they’re mature adults seeking a fresh start in a home spacious enough to accommodate their belongings, or well-established young professionals ready to own for the first time, living at Waterstone makes every day feel like a bit of a holiday.

Take, for example, the 15,000-square-foot-owner’s clubhouse. Its 17 seat movie theatre with 100 inch projection screen, games room with wet bar, and entertaining chefs kitchen and wine bar create the ambience of a boutique hotel lobby. Then there’s the heated pool, sauna, and steam room, contributing a “spa-like” feel to Waterstone.

Most important, of course, are the homes themselves, which are proving to be the perfect combination of quality and affordability sought by buyers who have set the good pace of sales at Waterstone. From the sleek stainless steel Whirlpool appliances in the kitchens, to the solid granite counter tops, soaker tubs, and 5 foot walk-in showers in the bathrooms, these generous homes attracted Don Waterhouse and his wife immediately.

“My wife and I came back several times to look at Waterstone, and we both loved it,” he says. “Unfortunately she passed away in January. When I sold our big townhouse, it was very emotional. Coming to Waterstone was the right thing to do. The neighbours and the sales staff make me feel like part of the family. It’s the best move I’ve ever made.”

With all the dog walks he’s taking on the green paths surrounding Waterstone, Don says his new home is keeping him healthy. And watering his vacationing neighbours’ plants is keeping him busy.

Those neighbours may be glad to return. After all, they say the best part of going away is coming home again.

Waterstone proves the point.
